Focal Theme : Climate Change, Disasters & Sustainable Livelihood

Climate change is a serious phenomenon affecting agricultural, socio-economical, ecological and environmental sustainability of the earth. Climate change is an alarm and threat to the sustainability of 7.35 billion population of the world. Global trends of climate change and extreme weather events affecting agricultural production potential of land. The impact of climate change and extreme weather conditions varies. Increase of Carbon emissions and adverse human practices and excessive use of energy resources proved to be responsible for resulting climate change. Climate Change is a serious issue and having serious concern amongst the academic parlance, environmentalists and policy makers. Understanding the mechanism of climate change and climatic variability is an important aspect it requires monitoring in there regional perspectives particularly in developing countries. Disasters whether natural or anthropogenic are threat to global sustainability. Disasters always considered in terms human being. Disasters mapping and monitoring is an important aspect. There is an urgent need to develop strong, constructive and an effective mechanism to protect the life and property of human being from expected or anticipated hazards and disasters and to provide early warning system in order to save life and property particularly in developing countries. Mapping and monitoring the impact of natural or manmade disasters and study of ecological changes in environmental conditions are very important and an emergent and applied aspect of researches for restoring the sustainability of the future world. Sustainable livelihood depends on proper monitoring, mapping and full care of environmental conditions. There is need to study the physical, climatological, socio-economical variations and barriers and limitations of drafting formulation of the plans particularly in developing countries. Goal and vision of Sustainable livelihood particularly in developing countries varies from macro to micro unit of planning dimenstions. There is need to map the opportunities of utilization of natural and human resources. There is need to explore the possibilities of enhancement of land, water, vegetation and also mapping of potential of human capabilities and competencies in their spatial unit.
